BEST PRACTICES

A. VALUE-ADDITION PROGRAMMES1. Title of the Practice:

“Introduction of Value-addition Programmes”

2. Goal:

To offer horizontal mobility to students and to make them proficient in the skills required for better employability.

Since we are affiliated to a university, we can only introduce only those programmes which are approved and conducted by the university abiding by the rules and regulations that go with the courses. As there is no provision of twinning programmes or the dual degree system in the university, our students can pursue only one programme at a time. Similarly, no syllabus in itself can satisfy all the academic needs of students who are constantly looking for some additional and complementary inputs.

Nowadays, the needs of commerce students are growing day by day and more and more avenues are becoming available to them for not only pursuing higher studies but also getting jobs in different sectors provided they have necessary extra qualifications in addition to their basic degrees. It is for these reasons, some complementary and value-addition courses need to be offered to students to give them that extra edge which would enable them to compete with the best in their chosen areas.

3. The Context:

Commerce students generally want to pursue CA course for which they first need to clear CA-CPT examination which qualifies them for the higher level of IPCC; after they successfully clear both IPCC groups they become eligible for CA final. Since there was no coaching facility at Wardha, and Nagpur, where these facilities are available and that too at a very high cost, being at some distance, our students, mostly from poor sections, were indeed deprived of any guidance for CA-CPT preparations. It was for this reason, we decided to start CA-CPT guidance programme at a very reasonable fees.

Equally important has been the demand for computer training. Since most Commerce courses have now been integrated with ICT one way or the other, we decided to make all students computer literate and also, to further their careers, designed a certificate course in Tally which helps all aspiring accountants. Another area where our students need some value addition is English Communication skills. To satisfy this need we decided to introduce English Speaking classes with the help of own faculty.

Further, and in order to be more job-worthy, students also need good training for cracking the competitive examinations like banks, staff selection, MPSC, Police recruitment etc. We thus decided to offer preparatory programmes for the above examinations. With these goals in view, and in adherence of SMW's objective of providing quality education at an affordable cost, the institute decided to offer quality inputs to our students at minimal fees through the guidance programmes for CA-CPT, Competitive Examinations, Police Recruitment, and also the certificate courses in English Speaking and Tally.

4. The Practice:

Keeping in view the most urgent needs and also the considerations of funds, infrastructure, availability of learning resources, medium of instruction, and requirements of job market, the faculty members designed the syllabi for different courses, and now all the value addition programmes are in implementation as planned. Since no grants are available for such kind of courses, the institute collects minimum fees from students purely for administrative expenses and also for paying to guest faculty.

Renowned CA's, noted professional and industrialists/entrepreneurs in the town are invited as Guest Faculty. The courses are conducted within the college premises after the regular classes are over. Thereby we are ensuring the maximum use of the college infrastructure and resources for the benefit of the student community. The following are the implementation schemes for various courses:

All the value-addition programmes have received good response from students and are being run quite successfully. Since the primary objectives of the programmes are to offer students some complementary value-addition to their regular courses, no particular benchmarks were set except raising the standard of their studentship in terms of enhancement of skills and employability.

5. Problems Encountered and Resources Required

The institute did not face any problems in the implementation of any of the programmes. As the programmes have been introduced as per the feedback and requirements of students, we get good response from students. Moreover, we are charging minimal fees in comparison with the fees charged by the outside agencies resulting into good enrolment.

Since we have a very resourceful faculty, designing and execution of the various syllabi did not meet any difficulty. Further, we have the back-up of guest faculty from our alumni and the local industry/society. Owing to the constant support by our parent organization SMW, we have never faced any problems in terms of funds for infrastructure. Whatever resources are required for the implementation of programmes are always made available by our competent management.

6. Notes:

We are planning to add some more courses to the existing one in the XII UGC Plan.

B.COMMERCE LAB

1. Title of the Practice:

“Commerce Lab”

2. Goal:

“To make students aware of the basic concepts related to the syllabi of Commerce and Economics and train them in their application to the real life situations.”

The Commerce and Economics syllabi, as all students realize, are replete with numerous concepts that need to be clearly understood in order to have full comprehension of the syllabi in totality. Similarly, of all the courses, the Commerce courses are closer to the common people in view of their wider applicability. Whether it is the Union or State Budget, Banking or Insurance, Marketing or Management, Taxation or Investments, each area is linked to the common man one way or the other.

In view of the above, our faculty and management decided that our students must be absolutely thorough in all Commerce concepts so that they could not only do well in their examinations but also act as counsellors to the society in dealing with day to day Commerce related situations.

3. The Context:

All Commerce students have to cope up with various concepts and definitions on daily basis in the course of their studies. And even though, the teachers offer all the resources at their disposal to students, there are still a number of areas which need practical training. In some case, teachers and students can take recourse to the field visits and industrial tours for real exposure to the practical side of the syllabi. But it is not possible to take students outside every time and therefore the students need to be given the simulated conditions to understand the issues in question.

This can be best done in a specialized Commerce Laboratory which would have models, charts, graphs and seminal study material related to the basic commerce concepts. At a place like Wardha, students harbor very small ambitions and, for many, degrees are just the means to get jobs whereas we want students to be both the recipients and disseminators of knowledge.

Secondly, at a place like Wardha, there is little awareness about paying taxes or investments. As a responsible Commerce College in the region, therefore, we decided to create this awareness in the neighbourhood through free consultancy by our own teachers and students. It was with these objectives in mind that the Commerce Lab was conceived.

4. The Practice

We have created a special space for the Commerce Lab in Room no. 16.

The Lab contains the following:

(a) Charts and Graphs

The commerce lab has been displaying the charts and graphs providing the knowledge of the following subjects:

1. Accounting, Statistics and Taxation;
2. Marketing environment;
3. Business Management;
4. Economics and Social Environment;
5. Computer Knowledge.

(b) Proformas/ Specimen copies

To ensure and create awareness among the students of commerce various formats of the following departments are available in the lab:

1. Income Tax
2. Banking
3. Insurance
4. Railways
5. Postal Services

(c) Study Material/CD's/Proformas/Rules/Laws

The following seminal study material is available in the lab:

1. Selected home assignments of the students
2. Questionnaires of Research Works
3. Selected dissertations of M.Phil.
4. Selected project works of M.B.A. and B.Com.
5. Selected Journals and Magazines of Commerce and Management.
6. CD's on Motivation, Environment, Personality Development.

Graphs and models are prepared by students under the guidance of faculty members. The Lab is open throughout the day and has an open access policy. The regular Lab Activity includes:

1. Discussion on Union and State budgets
2. Discussion on current developments in the world of Commerce and Industry
3. Guest lectures and GD's on select topics related to the syllabi
4. Free Consultancy for filing of Income Tax Returns
5. Free Consultancy on Investments and Stock Markets
6. Academic staff club activity

The lab has all the Proformas of returns and people are informed about all the entries in them. Training about on-line submission too is imparted. Another novel activity is imparting of knowledge about Stock Markets and managing the portfolios.

5. Evidence of Success:

The Commerce Lab is becoming increasingly popular among students and the following models/charts have been contributed by the students:

1. Proformas of Balance Sheet and P&L Account
2. Statistical Formulae
3. Provisions of Income Tax
4. Marketing Mix Strategies adopted by corporate
5. Photographs of Management Thinkers and Functions of Management
6. Inflation, FDI, Impact of LPG.
7. Generation of Computers, Use of ICT in business.
8. Successful filing of Income tax returns

6. Problems Encountered and Resources Required:
